Mississippi Becomes News Focus Of Week

By Jay Swayze
NEWS Staff Writer
(Compiled from UPI)

The attention of the United States and the world has been focused on the small town of Oxford, Miss., where Negro James Meredith became the first of his race to enter Mississippi University.

The story of desegregation of Mississippi's schools started two weeks ago, when Meredith tried five times to register for classes. Each attempt was barred by Mississippi State Troopers, who were ordered to the scene by Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett. After the attempts to enroll were stopped the federal government decided to take action, since it had been decided by a federal court to desegregate Mississippi's schools.

On Sunday, the town of Oxford erupted, with riots breaking out, and property being destroyed. During the demonstrations two persons were killed and 75 were injured. As a result of the violence, federal troops were called onto the scene to quash the violence, which by that time had spread throughout the entire city.

Although the troops did quiet the town there still remained a rushing under-current, when James Meredith went to register for classes on Monday morning. As the 29-year-old Negro filled out the forms he rubbed his eyes, which were watering from the tear gas lingering about the campus.

As Meredith walked to his American Colonial History class students shouted at him, "Was it worth two deaths?"

The campus was anything but a typical college scene. Burned-out automobiles, litter, mounds of tear gas cannisters, soldiers with rifles were all part of the incident which caused the world to take notice.

In Europe local news items were pushed to the second page to make way for the Mississippi story. Few European newspapers made editorial comments on the incident, but the Soviet news agency Tass did not pass up the opportunity to rake President Kennedy over the coals, by calling President Kennedy's request for peace a "meek protest of the federal government." Newspapers in Denmark, France, Holland, Sweden, Portugal, Italy, and West Germany all gave the story banner headlines.

On Monday there was no doubt in anyone's mind who was in control of the situation. The federal troops, more than 15,000 strong, were camped throughout the town and campus and by nightfall had most of the troublemakers in a compound which had been built. Authorities confiscated a mound of weapons, which ranged from guns to homemade maces.

Although federal troops have the situation in hand, the trouble is not yet over. The federal district court has decided to give Governor Ross Barnett until Friday, Oct. 12, before ruling on contempt of court charges against him. Another thing which could cause a new outbreak in Oxford is the decision of a Negro woman to apply for admittance to Mississippi University for the second semester.

Students Combine Study, Travel While Enjoying European Tour

The dream of just about every American who has an ounce of adventure in his blood is to travel to Europe.

Many students on the Bowling Green campus had an opportunity to make the trip last summer. Some of them went on the tour sponsored by the Foreign Language Department and others went on private tours.

The places visited by these students were numerous. Among the countries toured were France, Belgium, Switzerland, and England. The mountain areas of northern Italy, Austria, Germany, and Switzerland were the most impressive to Paul R. Evans, a senior in the College of Liberal Arts and Education. He traveled with the University's art department sponsored trip.

Rodgers, Treadway Set For Picnic-Dance

The men of third floor Rodgers Quadrangle invite all Treadway women to a picnic which will be held from 12 noon to 4:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Bowling Green City Park.

There will be a dance contest plus dancing and games for the picnicers. Picnic lunches will be furnished and can be picked up at the cafeterias.

David L. Larson, counselor for third floor Rodgers said that the entire freshman faculty has been invited to the picnic.

Bishop Entertains At Series

By Ann Jett
Editor

"I'm here to excite your curiosity and to amuse you," columnist Jim Bishop said as he began an entertaining program of anecdotes in the ballroom last night.

And this is just what he did. Reviewing some of the experiences he has encountered during the 33 years of his writing life, Bishop showed himself to be a humble man with a real purpose behind his work.

Bishop is well-known for his column, "Jim Bishop-Reporter," and his books, "The Day Lincoln Was Shot," and "The Day Christ Died." In addition he has achieved fame through his television show, "Byline-Jim Bishop," which won the 1962 ABC Emmy Award.

Bishop chose to discuss the six most interesting people he has interviewed. They are Jack Paar; Generalissimo Franco of Spain; Jackie Gleason; His Holiness, Pope Pius XII; President John F. Kennedy; and former president Dwight David Eisenhower.

For a man who says, "I don't speak publicly anymore than I have to," Bishop had a gentle yet snappy delivery that could be envied by the most polished speaker.

Using vivid words to make vivid descriptions Bishop brought his interviews alive for the audience.

Speaking of Jack Paar, he said, "Interrupting . . . this is the finest thing Jack Paar does." Later he described Paar as virile and manly in every way, but . . . with the emotional stability of a high school girl in a retarded class.

While in Spain, Bishop was granted an interview with Franco. Knowing that death and strikes are two things one just doesn't discuss with Franco, Bishop's first question to him was—"What kind of a Spain are you going to leave when you die?"

"Pope Pius XII has the most spiritual eyes of all the persons I have met. They are so dark. They look like they are in a dark pool with moonlight," Bishop said.

Jackie Gleason—"You remember the small boy with the fire engine? If you don't play his way, you don't play at all—Gleason is like that."

Bishop's day with President Kennedy was the one on which Kennedy was nominated for the presidency at the Democratic Convention in Los Angeles.

He spent four days with former President Eisenhower while doing a story "A Day in the Life of a President."

Enrollment Rises To New Heights

Fall on-campus enrollment has reached 7,504, President Ralph G. Harshman announced yesterday.

This is a 9.8 per cent increase over last year. Enrollment last fall was 6,833. This was a 9.7 per cent increase over 1960 fall enrollment.

Branch enrollment has reached 779. Last fall 718 persons were enrolled at branches in Bryan, Fostoria, Fremont, and Sandusky.

Graduate school made the most, a gain of 48 per cent. Enrollment jumped from 353 last fall to 524 now.

Men outnumber women on campus by 112 this fall. There are 3,813 men and 3,691 women.

A breakdown by classes shows the following: freshman, 2,270; sophomore, 1,938; juniors, 1,531; and seniors, 1,173; graduate students, 524; and unclassified, 68.

One thousand two hundred and seventy-nine are enrolled in Business Administration; 3,854 in Education; and 1,842 in Liberal Arts.

UAO Sponsors Recruitment Night For 'Rocketeers'

"Your Galaxy of Opportunity on the Planet UAO" was the theme of Recruitment Night, sponsored by the Union Activities Organization, Saturday.

The UAO orientation gave students a chance to tour the Union, observe the various activities of UAO, and apply for committee membership in any of the 25 UAO committees.

The tour began by boarding the north elevator, "Membership II" rocket ship, which blasted off from the first floor Union, "Earth." After reaching the limits of the fourth floor, "Space Station," the tour orbited back to the second floor, "Moon," and finally landed on "Planet UAO," third floor.

Information booklets concerning the UAO are free in the UAO office on the third floor of the University Union. "Galaxy Maps" showing a layout of the Union are available in the pamphlet stand.

The UAO bulletin board lists the officers and directors of the various divisions and committees students may refer to for further information.

Seniors Can Register For Placement Book

Seniors who have not completed a registration form for the placement office's Placement Preview are advised to do so by Monday, announced Chester C. Arnold, assistant placement officer.

The Placement Preview, which is mailed to more than 2,000 employers across the nation, is a booklet listing the job qualifications of registered seniors. The publication lists seniors in the colleges of education, liberal arts, and business administration, who are to be graduated in January, June, or August.

Faculty Senate Meets To Consider Report

The report of the Trustees' Committee on Student Affairs was the subject of discussion at the afternoon meeting of the Faculty Senate Monday.

The report, compiled from several months' study by faculty members, student leaders, and administrators on various phases of student life, contains specific recommendations directed to various offices throughout the campus.

At the Senate's meeting it was explained that members of the Trustees' Committee, acting as subcommittees, considered specific phases of student life. Recommendations were discussed, revised, and re-written before they were approved by the Committee as a whole.

Throughout the general discussion, particular recommendations for specific changes or modifications were made in the form of motions and were seconded. These will be distributed by mail for a ballot, said a member of the Faculty Senate.

This was the first of several meetings of the Faculty Senate to consider the report of the Trustees' Committee on Student Affairs. Monday's meeting dealt mostly with the nature of the report and how it was compiled, said a University official.

Additional discussion will be continued in the Senate's next meeting later this month.

Juniors Sponsor First Newsletter

A precedent was set Wednesday by the junior class with the distribution of the Junior Class Newsletter to all class members.

According to Gene R. Wilson, coordinator of student activities, this is the first time a newsletter of this type has been used at this University.

Last spring, William F. Calhoun, junior class president, made a campaign promise of better class communications for the coming year. As a first step in fulfilling this promise, Robert J. Buzogany, a junior in the College of Liberal Arts, was appointed to undertake the editing of a class newsletter.

Segall To Receive $32,000 For Store

A Wood County Common Pleas Court jury has set a price of $32,000 on the Benjamin Segall commercial property located across from the new Administration Bldg.

The property was sought by the department of public works for use by the University.

Price of the property was decided by a jury after Segall declined an offer made by the state of $31,000 plus permission to continue his business on the property until June 1, and to purchase all his saleable merchandise at cost.

The variety store and dry cleaning service is located on the corner of East Court Street and Thurston Avenue. A University parking lot borders the store on the other two sides.

Publications Office Requests Address, Telephone Changes

Students living off-campus who have moved since filling out University Directory cards are asked to turn in their new addresses and telephone numbers to the Publications Office immediately, announced Albert Walker, Editor of University Publications.

The Housing Office is keeping the Publications Office informed of changes in University addresses as they occur.

Preparation of the University Directory continues without interruption. However, a limited number of changes may be made in varying stages of preparation, if the Publications Office is notified as they occur. The effort to achieve maximum accuracy and usefulness of the University Directory is everyone's responsibility, Mr. Walker said.

Faculty and staff lists have been set in type. However, there is still time for changes to be made to assure the accuracy of each listing. Faculty and staff members who did not have a telephone listing at the time the University Directory cards were completed are asked to call the Publications Office when the telephone number is available.

One of the great handicaps in preparing a useful directory, according to Mr. Walker, is the illegibility of many cards filled out by students. In some cases, calls have been made to ascertain the correct spelling of individual names. This year's directory cards contained a warning to make every effort to be legible, and this has helped in most cases.

The directory is scheduled for completion late in October.

Editorially Speaking

Progress Marches On

The Civil War has been won again. Whether one considers civil rights or states rights, the outcome appears to be the same it was nearly one hundred years ago.

Negro James Meredith is attending classes at a previously segregated school. The federal government has come out victorious by the use of force.

In the process Mississippi has become the eyesore of the United States. Publicity on a split in domestic politics was bad enough but the shooting of a foreign correspondent is sure to make unfavorable headlines all over the world.

As could be anticipated, European newspapers have splashed stories across their front pages, pushing local news to second place. Russia's news bureau, Tass, described events as a meek protest of the federal government and defiance by "racist authorities in Mississippi."

Some will ask if the admittance of a colored person who could get an adequate education somewhere else is really worth the bloodshed, ill feeling, and headlines resulting from Meredith's and the NAACP's efforts.

We feel that it is.

Here is obviously a case of an organization using one man and one small area to gain a large point. Our constitution guarantees political equality. Education is one of the fundamental areas of our life in which this equality must be granted. This is the place and the time to stop and fight. The fight is not finished. It will continue for years all over the United States.

While this fight is going on there is a wide void which must be filled with understanding. We in the North are always quick to condemn, and perhaps close our eyes to the realities both in the North and the South.

Society in the South knows nothing but segregation. During the last few years they have had an entirely foreign concept thrust upon them both by the courts and by force. Theirs is a process of adjustment. Our tradition is not so old or so strong as theirs. We have a head start.

Now it is necessary for all of the South to adjust as parts already have adjusted.

Will we in the North continue to adjust along with them?

Letter To The Editor

First Faculty Senate Meeting

To the Editor:

The first Faculty Senate meeting this year was a complete failure thanks to a small number of "hair splitting" faculty members.

I am simply appalled that these faculty members would spend the time of the Senate in tearing down the manner in which a report was written instead of attending to the recommendations it contained.

The report I refer to is the Report of the Committee Appointed by the Board of Trustees of Bowling Green State University to Study Student Affairs.

This report, conceded, is not perfect but it does express the strong recommendations of the total committee and of the individual sub-committee members. These strong feelings involve issues which affect student life on this campus. Important reforms which students have requested and even demanded.

Some of these changes have been suggested changes, because to demand of a duly constituted authority such as Student Council to make changes, is totally contrary to democratic process and constitutional authority granted them.

Yet, this report, as important as I think it is, was subjected to near ridicule because it used such words as perhaps this should be done instead of saying to Student Council or other duly constituted bodies this should be done.

Although some students may not agree with the total content of this report and there will be differences of opinion, I think it is time that students let it be known through their duly elected Student Council members, their feeling on need for action by the Faculty Senate.

The report will not be transmitted to the President or Board of Trustees until the Senate has acted on it. If the first Senate meeting is any indication of action, there is little hope that some of the fine work of your fellow students and interested faculty members will ever be implemented or referred to the constitutional bodies for action.

It is a deplorable state of affairs when a few faculty members use obstructionist tactics at the expense of the students of this University.

Candid Campus

QUESTION: How do you think the segregation case should have been handled at the University of Mississippi?

DONALD C. WILLIAMS, Liberal Arts, soph. "Actually I think it's been handled right, as far as President Kennedy's action of bringing in federal troops. What else could he do? You take people who have the right to a good education and people in another environment who have lacked the right to a good education, and put them together. What do you have? The one will take his education for granted, and the other will appreciate it. Segregation has been going on for a long time, and will continue unless something is done. In the case of Meredith . . . Mississippi has been known as one of the strongholds for segregation in the South. If you start attacking segregation in the stronghold, integration is bound to spread. I believe a lot of the rioting has been started by outsiders. Some students even shy away from Negroes in classes here at Bowling Green."

MICHAEL L. NAGLEY, Business, junior. "I attended 'Ole Miss' in the summer of 1961, when Meredith was first trying to enter, and I found that mostly the seniors and graduate students were ready to accept him, but the younger students were hostile to him. The women, more than the men, were hostile to him, probably due to the influence of their parents. I have a lot of faith in human beings, and knowing that this problem is in the South, I realize that the people in the South can handle the situation best. These people wanted to handle the situation their own way. They knew it was coming. I think it was wrong to force the situation on them; in a matter of years the situation might have taken care of itself. I found that the people of Mississippi did not like Governor Barnett; he was put in power through a 'political machine,' which is common in the South. I believe President Kennedy met the challenge in the only way he could, but he lost the respect of the South. Picture a Jackson Mississippi president telling you how to run the schools of Ohio."

GWEN L. ROSEMOND, Liberal Arts, junior. "I think there should have been some means that the federal government could have used to prevent Governor Barnett from stepping in as registrar. However, since he did, I think that the federal government should have been better prepared to handle the situation, instead of losing much time in debate over what to do. I think Meredith was right in trying to enter now, not only because it is his right according to government law, but also there is little to be gained by waiting. The longer those who wish equal rights waited the stronger the opposition from the segregationists would have become."

CONNIE A. KRUEGER, Education, senior. "I think the governor should have backed the Negro student, instead of being so antagonistic. As long as he has the intelligence, any student should be admitted to the university. I do not think the federal troops did their job of keeping order. If they had, the outcome would not have been as serious."

BONNIE J. MORTON, Education, junior. "I think the governor was in error in the way he acted. If we have a constitution that states, 'all men are created equal,' then we should follow it. From the way it appears, President Kennedy was correct in the stand he took. My brother, who is in Stanton Military Academy in Virginia, feels that in this situation, it was not actually the students causing the trouble, but instead a few agitators."

Case On Campus

By Jim Casey

Our view: There is only one way to look at the Mississippi situation, and that is down.

The Carnation Room did a booming business last Sunday with 256 customers. Two hundred and fifty six times three bucks a head equals $$$$. That's a lot of prime rib . . . Try this just for fun: Without stopping to think or plan, name—just as they pop into your mind—a color, any number from 1 to 10, a flower, and a fruit. The most frequent answers: red, 5, rose, and apple. How close were you?

The student body president may have a few good points there, but HERE is a good opportunity for students to have a voice in discipline affairs — something we haven't had before. Previously, all discipline cases were in the hands of the administration and personnel deans. Now the question is: do we want this opportunity? If we do, let's grab it, even though it means added responsibility and a little criticism. If we don't want the opportunity, let's hope the decision isn't based on unwillingness to accept the responsibility because someone is afraid of unpopularity. We doubt very much that the student body president would resign his post because of criticism and unpopularity with a few students. Let's not sell BG students short. We may have more fortitude than some people believe.

It's no joke: Two Miami (Fla.) University students have come out with a new hair tonic made exclusively for sophisticated, greasy kids. The name of the product? You guessed it—"Greasy Kid Stuff." The directions on the bottle's label read: "Hold bottle in palms of greasy, little hands. Jump up and down vigorously to stimulate active ingredients. Use tremendous amount for that 'slicked-down' look and to facilitate re-orders and sales volume." It sells at 50 cents a bottle . . . A Cynic's View: With the attitude of Ole' Miss students, it's a wonder northern universities don't refuse to admit southern white students

Undefeated Harriers Seek 3rd Straight Win

After impressive victories over Miami, 21-34, and Toledo, 15-48, the Bowling Green varsity cross country team lays its undefeated status on the line against a powerful Central State team tomorrow.

The Falcons meet the Marauders on a four mile course opposite the University golf course, northeast of Memorial Hall, at 11:30. The freshman teams run at 11:00. The Marauders have been tough on the Falcons in the past, taking three of the last four meets between the teams. Their last meeting was a hard-fought contest which Central State won 27-29. Bowling Green last beat the Marauders in 1958, by a 20-35 score.

This will be the first meet of the fall for Central State, and the Marauders seem to be loaded with talent. Their No. 1 man is Les Hegedus, a four year veteran. He has finished first in the meets between the schools two years in a row. His four mile time of 19:53.6 last year was one of the best times ever run against Bowling Green.

The No. 2 man on the Marauder squad is Choice Phillips. Hegedus and Phillips give Central State a powerful one-two punch that could spell trouble for the Falcons.

Joe Foster, who was first against the Falcons in 1959, has rejoined the Marauders after a year's absence. Sophomores Tom Seymour and Bill Moore give Central State added depth.

Falcon Coach Mel Brodt's aces in the hole are junior Barry Binkley, who was the first Bowling Green man to finish each race last year, and sophomore Dale Cordova, who has been pressing him this season. These two could lead the Falcons to a big upset.

The varsity cross country team won their second in a row by trouncing Toledo Tuesday afternoon 15-48. The first five men across the finish line were Falcons.

The Falcons' two top men, junior Barry Binkley and sophomore Dale Cordova were tied for first with a time of 15:38. The next three finishers, with their times, were Lloyd Kime, 16:09, Ralph Canady, 16:17, and Don Bradley, 16:24.

The top runner for the Rockets was Jim Gerlach, with a time of 16:34. Vinson Rehfeld, with 16:41 and Bill Flinn, with 16:42 finished 7th and 8th for Bowling Green. Running, but not scoring for the Falcons, were Don Patton, 16:46, and Joe Muscarella, 17:16.

Coach Mel Brodt's freshmen added further to Toledo's humiliation when they beat the young Rockets 15-50. The first place finisher for the Falcon frosh was Bill Rieck, whose time of 15:39 was only one second off Binkley and Cordova's winning effort in the varsity meet.

Meet The Assistants

Former Miami Grid Standout Trains Falcon Ends For Perry

By Kent Harbison

A former all-Mid-American Conference and all-Ohio end from Miami University, William Mallory, is in his fourth year as assistant to Head Coach Deyt Perry.

After starring on the gridiron for Miami, Mallory then came to Bowling Green as a graduate assistant to the freshman team.

In 1958, he received a master's degree in education and took up the head football duties at East Palestine High School. His first year as a head coach, Mallory guided East Palestine to an undefeated 9-0 record. However, his high school coaching career was then halted when he returned to Bowling Green to replace Jack Fouts as end coach of the varsity. Bill Mallory, youngest of Bowling Green's football mentors at 27, has remained in that capacity ever since.

Coach Mallory expressed a combination of both optimism and caution concerning Bowling Green's football fortunes for the 1962 campaign. Although there were six returning lettermen at the ends, only one, senior Tom Hogrefe, saw considerable action last year.

He went on to say, "We lost quite a bit through graduation; and we were quite concerned at first, since we lost four ends, two of which were two-year regulars. All these kids, however, have made real good progress. Kennedy (Bert, another senior letterman) has been our most improved end, the juniors are doing a good job, and Tom Sims and Norm Limpert are two good sophomores. We have really looked good as compared to what we expected."

When asked about the other MAC teams, Mallory replied, "The league is as close as it's ever been. There are no poor teams." He singled out Miami, Ohio University, Kent State, and Western Michigan as tough contenders and added that Toledo should improve through the season.

Describing the Falcons, Coach Mallory said, "I think we have a real good ball club and as good a chance as ever for the Mid-American title."

Mallory summed up his feelings by saying, "It's going to be a tough season, a real challenge."

Films To Be Shown

Football films will be shown of all the Falcons' away games on the Wednesday following the game at 7 p.m. in the White Dogwood Suite.

The University's coaches will be present during the film reviews to answer questions and comment about the games.

These films are a project of the Special Features Committee of the Union Activities Organization.

Broncos Remain Potential Threat, Despite Poor 1-3 Season Record

Bowling Green will be tied with Ohio University for the Mid-American Conference lead if it defeats Western Michigan tomorrow. The game is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m. in the Bronco's Waldo Stadium.

Western finished second in the Mid-Am last season with a 5-4-1 record, and was the conference representative in the Aviation Bowl. The Broncos are considered a contender for the league title again this year, despite a 1-3 record to date.

The Broncos defeated Central Michigan, 28-0, in their opening game. Western then ran up against an undefeated Louisville team, and lost, 27-21. Last week end, the Broncos lost their league opener to the pre-season favorite for the Mid-Am championship, undefeated Miami.

The game with the Redskins, described by Western Coach Merle Schlosser as one of the best he has seen a Bronco team play, was closer than the 17-7 score indicated.

There were two key situations in which the Broncos could have changed the outcome of the contest. First, sophomore end Ron Schneider blocked a Miami punt in Redskin territory in the second period, Miami recovered the ball and got into position for a 22-yard field goal.

Also, in the final quarter, Western drove to Miami's 34, trailing only 10-7. On fourth down, two yards to go, the Broncos faltered. Miami took over and traveled 66 yards in 13 plays to score the final touchdown with just 1:58 on the clock.

In Schlosser's opinion, the Broncos played well on both offense and defense, and, but for two key plays mentioned above, it could have been a different outcome.

Leading ground gainer for Western was fullback Bill Schlee, who gained 93 yards in 20 carries.

Schlee is also the leading rusher for the Broncos this season with an average of 4.8 yards per carry for three games. Quarterback Roger Theder has completed 11 of 33 passes in the three games, for 235 yards and three touchdowns.

In the series between the two teams, the Falcons hold a 6-1-1 edge. Western won in 1954, 20-15, but the Falcons won in 1955, 35-0, and won in 1956, 27-13. The teams fought to a 14-14 tie in 1957, but the Falcons have won four in a row since then. In 1958, the score was 40-6, and in 1959, 34-0.

When Bowling Green visited Kalamazoo in 1960, they had to fight back from a 13-0 deficit to win 14-13. The Falcons blocked a punt with minutes to go, and scored the winning touchdown, with just seconds remaining on the clock.

Tomorrow's game with Western Michigan will be broadcast on station WFOB, 1430 on your AM dial. All Falcon games, home and away, are broadcast on WFOB.

Last year, Bowling Green won a 21-0 decision in University Stadium.

The tentative starting lineup for Western includes: ends, Bill Somerville (200), and Ron Schneider (201); tackles, Butch LaRoue (220), and Marv Feenstra (226); guards, Chuck Liedtke (233), and Pat Emerick (210); center, Mike Maul (210); quarterback, Roger Theder (177); halfbacks, Karl Toth (180); or Joe DeOrion (173), and Alan Gibbs (196); and fullback, Bill Schlee (210).

The Falcon starting lineup will be the same as in the Dayton game with one exception. Bert Kennedy may replace Tom Sims at left end. Sims is a doubtful starter because of an injured Achilles' tendon.
